Counting the Omer and the Quarantine is Meaningful

Rabbi Hillel Skolnik | hskolnik@tiferethisrael.org

Each year, on the second night of Passover, we begin the counting of the Omer. The Torah specifically instructs us to count seven complete weeks, which take us from Passover to the holiday of Shavuot. It is a counting which begins with day 1 and continues through day 49 as we consciously count up (as opposed to counting down) to the experience of revelation at Mount Sinai.

This year, when it came time for counting the Omer during our second seder, the Skolniks did two countings. We counted the Omer, but also did our "counting of the quarantine." Some of you might have seen us on Facebook on a daily basis as we count the days since our children have been to school. It has become a serious daily ritual for us and, I dare say, for those who watch our videos on a daily basis. As we each share something positive that has happened that day, we declare ourselves actively ready to fulfill the act of saving lives by staying home. We recite a blessing thanking God for answering us in times of crisis and then count each day of the quarantine. May 1, the date of publication of this issue of the Forum, will be day 47.

Last week we passed the 40-day mark, which meant that we had been in this social isolation longer than Moses had been on Mount Sinai. In the coming days, we'll pass day 49, which will take us into higher numbers than the Omer has ever gone and will ever go. To be honest, there are moments when I find that to be depressing, as it has been so long since we've all been together in person. But, there are other moments when I am inspired by our communal perseverance, ability, and willingness to maintain these physical boundaries for the sake of saving lives. And, through it all, I remember each day of counting of the quarantine is also counting up toward a new normal for our congregation, our city, our state, our country, and our world. May we arrive at that new normal safely, speedily, and in good health.

Supporting Synagogue is an important mitzvah

Ronald Solove, President | rsolove@aol.com

Over these past few weeks, the concept of community has changed before our very eyes. For as long as any of us can remember, community included physical gatherings for social interactions, prayer, ritual, learning, eating, and every facet of life. In what seemed like the blink of an eye, all of that changed as the Coronavirus struck and social distancing became the order of the day. Yet, even as the concept of how community gathers has been altered, its definition remains the same. Community is formed when people find ways to gather together, no matter what: for happy times and sad, for celebration, social interaction, prayer, ritual, learning, and even eating.

At this confusing and disturbing time, Congregation Tifereth Israel has served as a focus for our community and an anchor for our faith. Our shul has provided us with a regular schedule of services, classes, and activities via Zoom and other social media. It has helped us stay connected to one another. Our clergy and staff have continued to serve us, succeeding under truly difficult circumstances. We remain members of a strong, vibrant congregation that continues to move forward to meet our spiritual, educational, and social needs.

In the past few weeks we have celebrated a bat mitzvah, had a communal seder, read from the Torah, taught religious school, sung songs with our tots, marked anniversaries, mourned loved ones, laughed, cried, and kept up our regularly scheduled activities and services. In other words, we continued to be a k'hilah k'dosha – a sacred community. Without question, regardless of the what the weeks and months ahead bring, that will not change

Of course, our shul is not immune to the economic circumstances we all are experiencing. We have actively pursued means of helping us smooth over this very rough patch, including applying for a federal SBA loan under the Payroll Protection Plan.

We know well that these uncertain financial times have hit many members of our congregation. Let me be clear that we will be here as your community, irrespective of the financial toll this crisis has taken on your family. Even so, we are counting on members to help, as much as they are able, maintain our financial health as we work through this difficult time. And though your financial contributions are crucial, what is most important are your personal and your spiritual contributions as a member of this community. We are happy to work with you and are more committed than ever to making sure that no one is ever turned away due to the inability to pay.

Our world is set to construct a new version of normal. With your steadfast dedication, we known Tifereth Israel will play a leading role in the world as a model of sacred community.

Why I Love Tifereth Israel

Carol Glassman Congregation Tifereth Israel is my home away from home. Tifereth Israel is a warm, welcoming, diverse, inclusive, egalitarian community. We embrace acceptance, where every person who enters our synagogue feels comfortable. I love this.

We are a traditional Conservative synagogue. But, in addition to honoring our beloved traditions, we are constantly seeking and learning new ways to inspire, to teach, and to grow as a congregation.

We have something for everyone at Tifereth Israel. From Boker Tov for our youngest children to the Samuel M. Melton Religious school and USY for elementary through high school students, Tifereth Israel offers a rich Jewish education to our children. We have exciting, relevant, resonant adult education programs here at Tifereth Israel, which are offered both during daytime and evening hours. I had a lifelong dream of becoming a bat mitzvah. That dream was fulfilled when I was given the opportunity to celebrate my bat mitzvah with a group of 12 adults in 2007. It remains one of my most cherished milestones. It is always possible to learn, to deepen one's understanding of our religion, and to find answers in personal journeys of faith here.

We are blessed at Tifereth Israel with clergy who are brilliant, invested in what they do, caring, and available to us, in both joyful and sorrowful times. We believe strongly in, and work hard for social justice, which is very important to me. And we have FUN! From Dinner, Drinks & Drash to the Purimspiel, to our annual picnic - and so much more - Tifereth Israel provides countless great activities that bring us together in wonderful, positive ways.

I have always loved being Jewish. And I love being Jewish at Congregation Tifereth Israel.

Conflict Between Tradition, Change Found Everywhere

Education Director Miriam Berk | mberk@tiferethisrael.org

I will be receiving my executive master's degree in Jewish educational leadership at the end of May. Our final project is to present and write about an enduring dilemma, when one finds oneself challenged by two opposing values. My group chose to present on the values of "comfort" and "disruption" (stated more simply, tradition and change). Everywhere one turns, one faces this tension – when to make a change and when to leave things well enough alone. Who would have thought our enduring dilemma would be front and center in the last few months as we fight the COVID-19 pandemic? Our world has been turned upside down and we find ourselves needing to find the comfort and stability in the disruption of our work, our schooling, the way we entertain, and the way we pray. While I had toyed with moving some religious school programs to a virtual format, I never anticipated the need to transform our program from a brick-and-mortar school into an online learning experience within the span of two weeks! Here are few things I've learned, through the lens of our school's Jewish values:

Shmirat HaGuf: Protecting our Bodies
Normally, we speak to students about the need to keep our hands and feet to ourselves in the classroom (no kicking someone else's chair, poking others, etc.). In the time of COVID-19, this has taken on a whole new meaning. The rabbis and I have talked over our ZOOM sessions about pikuach nefesh (the value of saving a life) in terms of the importance of distancing to protect ourselves and others from getting sick. Additionally, teachers have been incorporating Hebrew through movement into their lessons, bringing home the importance of taking care of our bodies and staying healthy, even if we have to spend so much time indoors.

Kavod: Respect
Using our new ZOOM format has been a great way to stay connected to our students and families. Our students are still expected to be respectful of their teachers and classmates as we face new challenges that this format presents ("everyone, put yourselves on mute!"). And we are offering our online classes during regular school hours to maintain a sense of continuity and normalcy and to respect and honor routines while at home.

Kedusha: Holiness
There is something sacred in these gatherings – reaching through a screen to maintain connection with faces we are used to seeing weekly in person. Humans are not meant to be isolated; and as Jews we work best in community. Returning to school online allows our community to flourish and students to interact with one another and to be seen and heard during these difficult times.

Talmud Torah: The Value of Education
As we planned to complete our last six weeks of classes virtually, the staff spoke about what we feel are the important objectives we want our students to walk away with. Overwhelmingly, our teachers felt contact with their students superseded content. That is why each session begins with a connecting prompt to help maintain and strengthen community amongst the students, even with our physical distancing. And they are doing their best to engage students with creative and interactive lessons, teaching the remaining holidays of the year, Bible stories, and Hebrew prayer and reading. Based on emails I've received from parents, they so appreciate our efforts in continuing to provide a warm, inviting space for students to be seen, to share, and to learn!

From the time I canceled in-person classes until our teachers were holding virtual lessons was less than two weeks. I am in awe of, and have tremendous gratitude for, our teachers and specialists who pushed through some discomfort and uncertainty to figure out how to convert their lessons to a virtual format. We "met" during our scheduled spring break to figure out how to use ZOOM and to share best practices of how to have meaningful and effective online lessons. Those with stronger technical skills reached out to guide those who were having more difficulties. We were all learning from one another in this new world! I can't thank our teachers enough for rising to the occasion to finish out our year strong and connected to their students.

"As a torch is not diminished, though it kindles a million candles, so will one not lose who gives to a good cause." – Exodus Rabbah 30:3

In order for an acknowledgment to be sent from our office and the names to be listed in the Forum, the minimum donation to our various funds is set at $18. Donations to the Prayer Book Fund are set as follows: Siddur Lev Shalem-$36/Chumash-$50
